

New Course

Starting September 2017
Experimental Ceramic Workshop

Due to the demand for additional places in my ceramic classes I am pleased to offer a new ten week course at the Museum where my studio is based - starting Monday 18th September 2017.

Monday 10.00 - 1.00
10 weeks
Fee £350.00
(Includes cost of clay and firings)

Level: for makers who want to expand on their skills and are working towards independent practice

This course will explore the use of clay in an experimental way, using a variety of hand building and mould making techniques. Looking at how to achieve a variety of surfaces, exploring texture, colour and glaze with an emphasis on test pieces within the making.

There will be an opportunity to work with paper clay as part of this process, working on personal design projects; supporting the development of individual ideas. Students will be encouraged to use sketchbooks for their research and to document all experiments and tests

For more details contact Claire www.claireirelandceramics.com

London Museum of Water and Steam
Green Dragon Lane
Brentford
Middlesex
TW8 0EN